3:45 pm EDT: National Geographic Geotourism Website Joint Project. In the wake of last October's International Community Congress, the National Geographic Society has expressed a strong interest in collaborating with Heart of the Continent Partnership to develop a geotourism website highlighting the region. The development of such a site would involve local input as to tourism destinations to facilitate wise stewardship of cultural, historic, and natural resources. We'll discuss if and how to proceed on this potential partnership.
